John-

I wanted to write an email in support of Rule of 3 Brewing. Melissa and I think a brewery and tasting room located in East Hampton would be an excellent business decision and one we would both support.

I certainly hope individuals at the Town Hall who are evaluating this understand the nature of the business and the value it brings to the town. We often see restaurants in town come and go, and this could be a business in a location with a lasting presence.

Having known you since high school and Scott since 2001, I firmly believe this will be a socially responsible and viable endeavor with thoughtful consideration to the other businesses and residences in the area. You and Scott bring professionalism to this business model and your characters, as I have known now for many years, speaks for itself.

We wholeheartedly support this and truly wish you success in bringing this dream to reality. If there is anything we can do to support you in that objective, please don't hesitate to ask.

Dear Mr. DeCarli,

It has come to my attention that Rule of 3 Brewing is taking steps to set up a brewery in East Hampton. My email is to give my support to this project. I am confident that the business will thrive and be an asset to the community. A successful brewery with a tasting area is also likely to attract customers from out of town, potentially generating business for our local shops, restaurants, gas stations, etc. I look forward to welcoming this new addition to our town.

Thank you for taking the time to consider my opinion.

Sincerely,

Maureen Maalouf

To Whom it may concern,

I am sending this email to support the opening of a microbrewery on West High St East Hampton, CT. It is important for the town to invest in, show support for and encourage local entrepreneurs.

A brewery is more than just a local business. A brewery is a way to bring members of the community together. There is nothing more delightful than enjoying a pint with friends and neighbors.

Breweries become a sense of pride for community members. I am looking forward to watching Rule of 3 Brewing establish their roots and grow in East Hampton CT.

Hi,

I am writing in support of the town approving a brewery in East Hampton for Rule of 3 Brewing. I have visited many breweries across New England over the years and find that the folks who support craft brewing are a wonderful community of people. I've also almost always visited restaurants near the breweries in addition to other shops. Bringing folks into town to visit Rule of 3 would be good business not only for the brewery but for surrounding establishments. Fans of craft beer travel, sometimes fairly long distances, to purchase craft beers. Enticing the community of craft beer lovers to visit our beautiful town will lead to many positive ancillary benefits.

I strongly support the approval of a brewery for a Rule of 3 Brewing and hope you will consider some of my points Thank you, Justin Vicino

To whom it may concern,

I am writing in support of the Rule of 3 Brewery as a new business in East Hampton. My wife and I moved to East Hampton in 2011 and made it our home, with 2 children in Memorial school. We enjoy the variety of local businesses and are confident the Rule of 3 Brewery will represent the town well. They are creative, know the industry and have a good product that will bring business into the town.

Thank you very much for your consideration.
